From the Desk of Our Pastor

Consequences

One of the great proofs that God is God and we are His creatures is this simple fact; we cannot escape the consequences of our actions. As much as we try to play God and do what we want, we cannot create a scenario where we can make things turn out the way we want regardless of our actions. We cannot get away with anything! Everything comes at a price!

The irony with the Judeans in Ezekiel's times is that for centuries they were doing what they wanted apart from the will of God, testing God's patience. So, when it came time to "pay the bill," so to speak, when they faced God's justice in the destruction of their land and exile, they complained that God was not fair.

This irony is magnified to the whole human race as we all play out our parts on the stage of life. We are all given our unique roles to play and given the rules of conduct. The roles themselves are not as important as how we play our parts. Will we play out our roles well? If not, we inevitably pay the consequences as we disintegrate on the stage. We then tend to say that God is not fair, accusing Him for not giving us the role we wanted.

We see something like this with the parable of the two sons, where one says that he will go out into the vineyard to work but doesn't, and the other says he will not go out to work but eventually does. In the original context, Jesus likens the religious elite of the Jews to the former, and the gentiles to the latter. However, isn't it like so many of us "religious" people to be like the first son who says that he will go but doesn't? We make everything "work for us," even our religious lives, but our hearts are not in it, ultimately not doing the will of the Father. Then we get mad at God when the consequences come.

St. Paul tells us what it looks like to obey God and "go out into the vineyard." It is simply this: get out of yourself and possess the same attitude Jesus had when He offered Himself up for all. What a drama of love played perfectly on the stage of world history! A life well played at this stage of life comes with consequences as well - good consequences! Either way, we creatures cannot escape the consequences.

Yours in Christ,

Father John Worgul
Pastor

Annual Report Fiscal Year 2022-2023

What a journey it has been this last year for our parish. We emerged from COVID and a whole lot is different than what it once was. I became Pastor right at its cusp in July 2020, and we not only had to deal with an epidemic with all its societal changes, but we also had to navigate through the changing of the guard from the Marianists to the Ordinariate, which, even in the best of times, would be a head-spinner. I want to thank you for your patience with me over these few years.

We sure have had our challenges! The first and foremost was and continues to be, our columns in the Eldersburg Church. In a nutshell, they were poorly constructed, but we are very fortunate that the problem was discovered when it was, or else the reconstruction costs would have been astronomical. As it is, the costs to remedy the issue are climbing upwards to one million dollars.

On the bright side, we were able to install our stained-glass windows this past fiscal year. They are a beautiful enhancement to our worship space. Remaining funds from the 150th Jubilee Campaign enabled us to begin this endeavor. Additional gifts to the current campaign allowed it to come to fruition. I thank you for your continued generosity in pledging close to $700,000 to date for the combined Stained Glass and Structural Reinforcement Projects.

I am also pleased with the new direction we are taking with our youth and family formation. I do believe Jesus is in our midst, and the Holy Spirit is taking us into deeper richer worship and appreciation of the Eucharist in this Year of the Eucharist. Lives are being changed by one on one discipleship, our small groups and our lay leadership development through our Art of Accompaniment program.

As you can see, our numbers are down from our pre-COVID days, and this is connected to our financial challenges. However, all in all, I praise God and give you thanks for helping us through these trying times. What a joy it is to be part of our Saint Joseph Catholic Community!
