The Mass: Setting the Table

Jesus and His Disciples were intimately aware of and performed the temple sacrifices and all the ritual preparation that went into them. Worship demanded sacrifice, and sacrifice had to be performed in a specific manner. Jesus' sacrifice brings together and fulfills all the sacrifices listed in Leviticus 1-7, but most directly, the Passover Feast. For the Hebrews, there was only one Passover Feast; the original and all subsequent Feasts were e-presentations and participation of that feast, so it is with the Mass; it is a re-presentation and participation of the Sacrifice of Christ, our new Passover.

The liturgy of the Eucharist begins with the Offertory. The offertory consists of bringing up the bread and wine, which represents the bounty God has given us from the good earth. It also consists of our tithes, the first and best portion of our income. The blessings the priest proclaims over these offerings, "Blessed are you, Lord God of all creation..." come from the ancient Hebrew liturgy. It is important to grasp that the priest acts in Persona Christi Capitis, "in the person of Christ our head." It is Jesus offering Himself up to the Father with our offerings. It is critical to see that our offerings must be a true sacrifice we feel, not just a crumpled-up dollar bill we do not feel. God does not want what you can "afford," He delights in your sacrifice.

The priest then sets the table with the paten (the plate), the chalice, and the purificators (napkins) and wash his hands. This, again, is an ancient Hebrew ritual reflected in Psalm 26:6: "I will wash my hands in innocence, and go about your altar, O Lord." The Latin for "I will wash" is lavabo, which is the name for this ritual. The Temple had a laver (a basin of water) for the ablutions, or ritual cleansing, and so did we. The priest prays, "Wash me from my iniquities, and cleanse me from my sins," and asks the congregation to pray that our sacrifice may be acceptable to God.

Different prayers are prescribed for each Sunday and special feast day, called "propers." They consist of the opening and closing "collects" and the prayer over the offering. This prayer over the offering the priest now prays completes the "setting of the table." So we see that worship is a solemn sacrifice that must be celebrated as a joyful meal at the table set with care and reverence.

Yours in Christ,
Father John Worgul
